CHILHOWIE
HIGH SCHOOL

A Year of EVALUATION

FOREWORD

Beginning in the spring of 1966 the school administration and faculty began preparations for a year of self-evaluation. This study was intensified with the opening of the 1966-67 session and gained momentum among the students as well as the faculty as the year progressed. By the time the Visiting Evaluation Committee arrived in April numerous reports had been compiled. Below and on the following pages the annual staff wishes to share with the readers of THE CHILVALEE excerpts from the summaries of some of these reports.

CHS PHILOSOPHY

We believe that every individual is of infinite worth and for this reason our paramount objective is to help each student in our school, regardless of his intellectual level, social or economic status, realize his worth as an individual and develop to the maximum of his abilities. We also believe we should endeavor to enhance the student's understanding and appreciation of esthetic, spiritual, and moral values and encourage him to reflect them in his daily living.

We believe that one of the chief aims of Chilhowie High School is to inspire our students to know themselves and to become intellectually prepared, physically healthy, emotionally mature, and socially adjusted in order to meet the demands of a rapidly changing society.

In one of its many meetings the faculty makes preliminary plans for the school's self-evaluation.

SCHOOL AND COMMUNITY

Chilhowie High School with an enrollment of 478 and a faculty of twenty-seven is located in Chilhowie, Virginia, on the Lee Highway. Hence the yearbook is called "THE CHIL-VALEE."

The high school building, erected in 1958, is situated on the site of an ancient Cherokee Indian burial ground near the Middle Fork of the Holston River. The name "Chilhowie" is an Indian word meaning "Valley of Many Deer." Therefore, the school's athletic teams are appropriately named the "Warriors."

Chilhowie, the site of the farthest settlement west in 1750, was first called Town House because Colonel James Patton chose the site for a future city. After the building of the railroad in 1856 a siding was put in near the Town House, and the community growing up around it was have attended CHS during all of their school years. In 1965-66 only 7.3% of the students dropped out or transferred. This percentage was below the State average.

Most adults in the community are in a middle-class income bracket, gaining their livelihoods either from farming, working in industries and building trades, as managers and owners of small businesses serving the community, or in the service occupations or professions.

Quite active in the school and community life is the Parent-Teachers Association which makes a contribution toward the Senior trip, helps with the free lunch program, and aids various special school projects, such as the publication of the school handbook.

Just as the patterns of behavior that characterize the student body are definite reflections of the community, the school makes a definite and major contribution toward shaping the prevailing complex patterns of behavior, as its graduates assume adult status.

STUDENT ACTIVITY PROGRAM

The Student Activity Program is directed toward improving the relationship among students, faculty, administration, and community. The program places emphasis on the following objectives: to meet the leisure, recreational, social and emotional interests and needs of students; to provide opportunities for specialized areas of particular interests to individual students; to develop desirable social traits in situations providing opportunity for individual, small group and entire school participation; to conduct these activities under conditions that will increase the likelihood of carry-over to out-of-school and adult life. The activities in this program provide excellent experiences for the development of responsible leadership, fellowship, and a consciousness of the needs for service to school, community, and to each other.

Activities provide
